2022 INNOVATION AWARD

StrongArm Technologies

Since 2013, our founding mission at StrongArm Technologies has been and remains to keep the world's Industrial Athletes™ proud, protected and productive. We achieve this through our pioneering FUSE safety wearables and the actionable ergonomic data they provide to individuals and management across numerous job types, industries and operating environments.

The Industrial Athlete™ is the beating heart of everything we represent and strive for here at StrongArm — the essential, frontline workers of the world who put their bodies on the line to perform a critical job function that positively impacts lives beyond their own. But that responsibility does not come without its consequences. Far too often, preventable workplace injuries lead to lost shifts, missed paychecks and threatened livelihoods. That, to us, is unacceptable.

In order to most effectively prevent injuries in a given operational environment, we work closely with each client across many dedicated and leading-edge teams, including client services, data and engineering, IT security and others. Each safety program is tailored to the needs of the workers on the ground and the managers who oversee them, including what types of safety wearables and attachment options will suit them best, and the look and cadence of the safety reports that we will provide. The result is an actionable and scalable safety solution that seamlessly becomes part of a facility's daily routine and is proven to prevent workplace injuries by as much as 64 percent across hundreds or thousands of Industrial Athletes.

After five product families and countless iterations, 33 patent filings (and counting), exponential team growth and countless university, government and international research, our aim is unchanged. The mission is the same. In all that we do, we are working tirelessly towards creating safer workplaces and better futures for the Industrial Athletes™ and their families.

Sean Petterson, is founder and CEO of StrongArm Technologies. After an unfortunate industrial incident, resulting in the death of a loved one, he turned his focus to the development and delivery of smart and effective safety equipment to keep workers safe and productive. "I've always had an interest in making products that have an impact on humanity," he explained. "Altruistically, I really like to provide this notion of human augmentation through design."

"We're creating an immense design challenge that incorporates everything from the varying body types to incredibly tough environments to vital information that can be pertinent to someone's life, and doing it on a means of financial metrics to make sure it can grow within large organizations," he explained. "The favorite part of my job is seeing the end results, seeing the reaction of the industrial athletes at the end of the day."

The two ErgoSkeleton models feature a posture feedback system that gently reminds the body to remain in proper posture while on a user's body based on the principles of neutral spinal kinematics. "We have a team of experts around us, everyone from ergonomists to biomechanical engineers to data scientists to bio-telemetric data scientists who are constantly refining access to the technology," Petterson explained.

2022 YOUNG LEADER AWARD

Vanessa Contreras

Senior Vice President and US Casualty Team Leader
SCOR Reinsurance

Early in her educational experience at the Katie School at Illinois State University, Vanessa Contreras displayed the traits of a successful leader by her selection as a freshman for an officer role in Delta Sigma Pi, a professional business fraternity. She was Secretary that year, moved to Vice President of Fundraising Activities in her junior year and on to President in her senior year. During her four years at Illinois State, she also was chosen as Vice President of Student Affairs for Gamma Iota Sigma, Secretary of Business Week and then President of that group her senior year. It was quite remarkable for a student to be President of two extremely active student organizations concurrently.

Her diligence, academics and student involvement earned Vanessa the recognition of being one of two students selected for the Lloyd's of London internship, part of the prestigious Katie School International Internship Program, during the summer after her junior year. She excelled in networking and still maintains industry friendships today from that experience. Upon her return from London, she was immediately immersed into the NAPSLO internship program, part in Dallas, Texas and the other half in Deerfield, Illinois to complete a whirlwind summer of industry engagements. While in college, Vanessa also was a Quote and Bind Insurance Representative for State Farm that further enhanced her industry knowledge as a licensed insurance producer. Additionally, she was recognized as an APIW Scholarship recipient and as a FAME Scholar for her scholarly achievements.

Vanessa began her career as a Risk Analyst at Munich Re in Princeton, New Jersey and later became a Professional Lines Underwriter and an Assistant Vice President. After eight years at Munich Re, she joined SCOR Reinsurance in 2017 as Vice President and Professional Lines Underwriter and later Senior Vice President and Deputy Team Leader for Professional Lines. She assumed her current role in January of 2022 as Senior Vice President and US Casualty Team Leader. Vanessa is responsible for managing the strategic direction, profitability, and client relationships for SCOR's US Casualty portfolio.

Vanessa holds Bachelor of Science degrees in Finance and Risk Management and Insurance from the Katie School of Insurance and Risk Management at Illinois State University. She has the CPCU and ARe professional designations and is working towards her RPLU. Vanessa served on the Reinsurance Under 40s Board for six years and is also an active member of the APIW, PLUS and an Executive Member of the ISC Group. She has successfully completed the LAMP program through PLUS and the ASPIRE Leadership Program through SCOR. In 2015, Vanessa was included in Intelligent Insurer's list of 40 Rising Stars Under 35. Most recently, in 2020, Vanessa was selected by Insurance Business America as a Rising Star in Insurance.

Being passionate about Breast Cancer Awareness, Vanessa has participated four times in the Avon 39 – The Walk To End Breast Cancer, and she and her siblings have hosted a toy drive for Kids with Cancer.

About the Katie School of Insurance and Risk Management

Since 2010, I have served on the Katie School Advisory Board of Executives. As an employer and an alumnus of Illinois State University, I appreciate what the Katie School does in preparing students for the industry.

The Katie School of Insurance and Risk Management at Illinois State University is a unique center of educational excellence. The Katie School was established in 1991 and helps to prepare over 400 students annually for careers in insurance, risk management, and actuarial science. The Katie School provides scholarships to attract top students and works with students and faculty to help develop “ready to go” graduates for the insurance industry.

The Katie School has set the standard for how to prepare students for the insurance industry by offering industry internships and cutting-edge courses including computer simulations focused on insurance company financial operational dynamics. The Katie School works with the officers in Gamma Iota Sigma to bring over 80 industry speakers to campus each year. Through Katie School support, students attend numerous industry conferences where they participate in sessions and network with industry professionals. The Katie School is well-known for its global perspective and fully funds international internships in London, Bermuda, Zurich, and South Africa on an annual basis.

The Katie School recognizes that the next-generation insurance workforce will not only need technical knowledge but will also need to leverage that expertise through critical thinking, negotiation skills, communication, and collaboration. To better address these requirements, the school has designed workshops, seminars, and one-on-one instruction to teach students these critical soft skills that have become differentiators in the digital age. The Katie School works with leaders in the insurance industry to set students up with research projects tackling the latest emerging hazards and challenges that are present in the risk management environment. Some of these students have gone on to present their research to industry leaders at board meetings and at industry symposia. Students working with the Katie School understand that the value of their college education goes well beyond credentialing.

Katie School students understand that the way to make the most from their college experience is to seek out opportunities that extend beyond the walls of the classroom. They do so by taking on leadership roles in student organizations, doing presentations for numerous audiences, conducting research on emerging issues with industry mentors, and building social capital through networking with alumni and professionals. In addition to helping to develop undergraduate students, the Katie School provides support for high school programs including a weeklong program, Redbird Risk Management, where students learn to manage the risks associated with a business. The program includes additional focus on inclusion efforts meant to attract a diverse pool of potential students to the Katie School of Insurance that may not otherwise be considering academic pursuits that would lead to career potential in the insurance industry.

The Katie School believes in lifelong learning and offers programs for industry professionals across the country. Additionally, networking for alumni outings and all industry at events such as the Katie School Golf Classic and this Katie School Hall of Fame are promoted.

The Katie School is a good steward of the funds provided, and details of how the funds are used can be found on page 12 of this program.

Message from the College of Business Dean

On behalf of the College of Business at Illinois State University, I welcome you to the Katie School Hall of Fame Innovation and Leadership Awards event. The Katie School excels in preparing students for successful careers in risk management and insurance, and exemplifies the core values of the College of Business. These values include excellence in instruction and learning, dedication to knowledge creation, commitment to citizenship in and service to our institution, state and nation, and maintenance of high ethical standards in our professional and personal lives.

The gold standard for colleges of business in the U.S. is accreditation by the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB). There are over 10,000 business colleges in the country from among whom less than 800 are accredited by AACSB for business degree programs. From among this group of 800, less than 200 are also accredited by AACSB for accounting degree programs. It is a matter of pride that our business college is among the elite group of 2 percent of colleges in the nation accredited by AACSB in both business and accounting.

The mission of Illinois State University's College of Business is, through commitment to excellence in learning, to prepare students to become skilled business professionals who think critically, behave ethically, and make significant contributions to organizations, communities, and our global society.

The strategic trajectory of the college is guided by academic innovation, community engagement and impactful business education. This strategy is regularly updated in consultation with all our stakeholders including students, faculty, staff, alumni, employers, and the larger business community. The College has a dynamic Business Advisory Council consisting of business leaders representing most major industries in the Midwest. The College is proud of the academic quality of its degree programs in Accounting, Finance, Insurance and Law, Management and Marketing. The College is home to outstanding service centers including the Means Center for Entrepreneurial Studies, Institute for Financial Planning and Analysis, Varner International Business Institute, Organizational Leadership Institute, Professional Sales Institute, and, of course, the Katie School.

Our major in Risk Management and Insurance has been consistently ranked in the top 10 in the U.S. and is recognized as a top program in industry engagement and co-curricular talent development. The International Insurance Society has recognized Illinois State University to be a Global Center of Insurance Excellence. The Katie School supports the actuarial science program which is recognized as a Center for Actuarial Excellence.

I commend the leadership of the Katie School for providing outstanding learning opportunities in risk management and insurance for our students. I applaud you for your professional accomplishments and thank you for sharing your valuable time with us on this special occasion.
